DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

1. The following title is suggested: "Cooling fan module with a protective screen".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-4 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Behl (US patent 6,104,607).

- Regarding claim 1, Behl discloses a fan module for a portable electronic device, comprising: a housing having at least a mounting space, an air inlet and an air outlet, wherein the mounting space connects the air inlet to the air outlet, a fan set within the mounting space, and a screen set on the housing covering the air inlet, wherein the screen has a plurality of meshes. Behl does not expressly disclose that the pitch between adjacent meshes is smaller than or equal to 2mm. If in fact the pitch of Behl is not already less than 2mm, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, to design the pitch of the mesh to be less than or equal to 2mm, or to be of any pitch necessary in order for the device to operate at maximum efficiency. Smaller pitch would prevent dust buildup in the device as described by Behl.

Art Unit: 2835

- Regarding claim 2, Behl discloses all the limitations of claim 1. He further discloses that the rotation axis of the fan is parallel to the central axis of the air inlet of the housing but the central axis of the air inlet is perpendicular to the central axis of the air outlet.
- Regarding claim 3, Behl discloses all the limitations of claim 1. Behl does not expressly disclose the material of the screen. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to select the material for the screen from a group consisting of metal and plastic, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.
- Regarding claim 4, Behl discloses all the limitations of claim 1. Behl further discloses the fan to be exposed through the air inlet.
